CLOSER RELATIONSHIP IS SEEN BETWEEN JAPAN AND SOVIET

JAPAN PLANNING FOR INVASION OF CANTON MARKETS

MINISTER MAY PAY A VISIT

PERSISTENT RUMOURS

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, To-day.

Japan has mapped out a plan to compete more keenly in South China markets with other countries. It is persistently reported here. It is yet uncertain whether the Japanese Minister to China, Mr. A. Arivoshi, will pay a visit to Canton in the immediate future.

Better trade relations between South China and Japan were paved by a recent visit to Canton of Lieut-General Yoshimichi Suzuki, Military Attache of the Japanese Legation in Shanghai. The Japanese officer spent one and a half months in Kwangtung and Kwangsi. He is said to have interviewed Mr. Hu Han-min at Hong Kong and other leaders here and in Kwangsi.

"The view of Japan in the minds of the South-western leaders has changed remarkably," the Military Attache told Japanese newspaper men upon his return to Shanghai. "They have arrived at the conclusion that co-operation with Japan is essential for the establishment of permanent peace in the Far East on the basis of the principle of a Greater Asia advanced by Dr. Sun Yat-sen. The result is that the anti-Japanese movement in South China has ceased almost completely."

Lieut-General Suzuki concluded his statement by declaring that the time had come for the Japanese to push their trade in the South China markets.

Already Japanese cement, cotton and woolen goods, machinery, sulphuric acid, coal etc. are being imported in increasing volume.

INTERNATIONAL TEA COMMITTEE REGULATION

CUT IN QUOTA NOT EXPECTED

EXPORT CURTAILMENT NECESSARY

London, To-day.

The International Tea Committee has fixed a regulated figure for tea exports from India, Ceylon and the Dutch East Indies for the year beginning April 1, 1935, at $2.5 per cent. of the standard export of 807,714,396 lbs. A cut in the quota is not unexpected, it is said.

A leading tea merchant, in an interview with Reuters, explained that the distributing trade quite unjustifiably feared that sufficient tea was not being released and that they would be short of supplies. As a result, they had started buying heavily, leading to a rise in the price level, which appeared to draw out invisible stocks and also attracted teas from other countries.

FOREIGN FIRMS REPORTED PAYING BUSINESS TAX

WHERE CAPITAL IS PART CHINESE

COMPLIANCE IN CANTON

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, To-day.

Although the vernacular press here states that several foreign firms in Canton have complied with the regulations of the Provincial Department of Finance concerning business tax with the object of paying this levy, it was learned yesterday that these firms have in fact been paying this tax ever since its inception.

A manager of one of the foreign firms stated that his firm was owned substantially by Chinese. Some not only pay business tax but furnish a cash security to the municipal authorities as a condition to carrying on business in Canton.

REDS REPORTED ADVANCING ON WUCHOW REGION

TWO DAYS' MARCH AWAY

FOREIGN SHIPS STAND BY

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, To-day.

Considerable panic exists in Wuchow, the leading city in Kwangsi, which is threatened by the 50,000 Communists who occupied Hoyuen (Hohsien) on November 27. H.M.S. Cicula is ready to proceed to the West River port to assist H.M.S. Robin in giving protection to British nationals there.

As there are many American missionaries in Wuchow and environs, the U.S.S. Mindanao was the first foreign gunboat to reach the river port. The Mindanao is large enough to evacuate all Americans if necessary.

Hoyuen is about 60 miles north of Wuchow. There is no highway between the two towns, which are, however, connected by the Ho River. By crossing the rugged regions, the invaders may reach Wuchow in two days, while the trip by water can be made in three days.

All the buses in Kwangsi have been commandeered for the transportation of troops to the eastern borders. Kwangsi has a good system of dirt roads, but there are no railways. If sufficient troops are mustered at Wuchow, there will be no danger to that city. The Reds are, however, advancing southward, hoping to secure foodstuffs and warm water clothes from the richest Kwangsi city.

WHOLE WORLD LISTENS IN TO ROYAL WEDDING

Science Brings Empire To Altar

ARCHBISHOP'S TRIBUTE

London, To-day.

No wedding has been attended by such a vast company of witnesses as was that of H.R.H. the Duke of Kent to Princess Marina of Greece, which, in the presence of an august and distinguished congregation, was solemnized in Westminster Abbey yesterday.

Vast multitudes of people, who throughout the route of the wedding procession, followed the service in the Abbey in hushed silence as it was broadcast from scores of outdoor loudspeakers, and in millions of homes, not only in Britain but throughout the Empire and in many foreign countries, were unseen witnesses who joined in the service. In his brief address at the conclusion of the ceremony, the Archbishop of Canterbury, who conducted the service, said that as a result of a new and marvellous invention of science the whole nation and Empire had become wedding guests.

The Problem Of Hat Transport

Hat-Box Is Coming Into Its Own Again

Millinery seems about to change once more the course of civilization. For years now women have travelled with a suitcase which, even if large, bore no comparison with what used to be called luggage. Hats were little contemplables of which only one or two were necessary and which, either of them, could be rolled up and packed into the suitcase without trouble. The large hat demands a completely different set of conditions. If transported, it can at best be worn upon the head, while the smaller hat still goes into the suitcase. But much more often it is unsuitable for such an occasion and the transport problem turns gradually towards the old hat-box. It is difficult to remember that hat-boxes at one period almost filled the cubic yard and that they were fitted with little wire mounds upon which hats could be pinned in safety—that is to say, if the packed resisted the temptation to fill in the cracks with other things, which immediately spoiled the bows and flowers. There is no doubt that the hat-box is gradually coming into its own again. Hat-boxes cannot be carried together with a suitcase, and they cannot go in buses, and it is difficult for them to be accommodated in cars. Just as long skirts prevent a great deal of the simpler locomotion and give an impetus to the taxi trade.

Rates and all particulars are shown in the schedules exhibited at the General Post Office and Kowloon Office. All letters etc., must be marked "By Air Mail" and handed in at the General Post Office. Unless superscribed for despatch by a special air mail service, correspondence will be forwarded by the first service available.

The Essence Of Dressmaking

HINTS ON IRONING

Most people are embarking just now upon a bout of dress or blouse making and often where there is not too much space for apparatus. Amateurs often do better if they make a whole dress by hand, there being less risk of tension troubles, which give their seams an amateurish look.

The essence of dressmaking is the placing and ordering. The stitching is far less in importance than the pressing. Where, however, machine is used, it is often convenient to possess one of the miniature kind which can be taken about with one on one's travels. The only requisite of the miniature machine is a good firm table upon which to clamp it. Also, as it is chain-stitch, the finishing off must be done with care.

The next useful gadget is that for measuring the length of the skirt. Skirt should be measured upwards, not downwards. That is to say, they should be made all round, just such a distance from the ground. A little stand is made into which chalk can be inserted at a given height from the ground. This can be moved round the edge of the skirt to mark it levelly. If chalk cannot be used pins can be inserted instead to give the line. This is one of the most useful contrivances for amateur dressmaking.

The electric iron should, of course, be at hand all the time. Where this is not possible a small spirit iron heats quickly and often answers the purpose. A still better plan is to take the finished dress to the tailor's and yet it pressed by his heavy pressing machine. When pressing it must be remembered that a damp cloth is wrong for woollen things. The woollen stuff itself should be dampened and ironed under a dry cloth. Thus no shine is left button-holes are easiest, if they are stitched before being cut. Finally, a pincushion fastened to the left wrist or a box which, when pressed, produces a single pin is invaluable for dressmaking.

DOMINICAN MISSION IN HONG KONG

New Theological College Nears Completion

With the completion of the New Theological College in Stubbs Road by July next, a long felt want by the Dominican Missions in the Far East will be fulfilled.

The buildings have been under construction for some months now, and the work is fast progressing.

Although the first Dominican Fathers arrived in Manila in 1581 and in China in 1590, it was not until 1861 that they came to Hong Kong. They had been carrying on their work for many years in Macao before opening a Mission in the Colony.

Messrs. Palmer and Turner have been entrusted with the work of preparing the plans and supervising the building, while Messrs. Wing Yick and Co., are the contractors.

WHY NANKING BANS PICTURES

"Leg Shows" That Tempt Young Men

MANDARIN DIALECT ONLY

Some very interesting views of the Motion Picture Censorship Committee are contained in the set of regulations reported to have been released by them in Nanking.

In the view of the committee the purpose of motion pictures is publicity and should contain nothing detrimental to the morals of the young.

All native talking pictures should use Mandarin, because provincial dialects tend to split up the country while Mandarin, the national language, is one of the strongest unifying forces for the country.

Films using provincial dialects will therefore be prohibited. Furthermore, all singing and dancing portrayed in films in which the legs of women are displayed to tempt young men, is against the principles of the New Life Movement, and accordingly, such films will not be permitted for public showing hereafter.

The station will comprise 15 firemen and one Chinese sub-contractor who will be in charge of the station.

BRIDGE NOTES

REMARKABLE HAND

by Ely Culbertson.

A hand which stretches itself to accommodate the contract undertaken by the Declarer is rare indeed at the Bridge table. The one given below seemed to be built to order.

It was dealt in a Duplicate game, and whether the Declarer undertook a contract of four clubs, five clubs or six clubs, he found that his supply of tricks lasted just long enough to fulfill his contract.

Mr. Alvan L. Davis of Waterbury, Conn., recently sent me the hand below, which was played in a tournament for mixed pairs at the University Club of Waterbury. In sending the hand Mr. Davis makes the remark that the board is an exemplification of the Biblical statement that "the last shall be first, and the first shall be last."

There were eight tables in play, and in every case North played the hand at a club contract. At six of the eight tables North's contract was five clubs. In one case North and South had reached the ambitious contract of six clubs, while in the remaining case North and South were pessimists and bid but four clubs.

In every case, strange as it may seem, the Declarer made optimum. Perhaps the opposite the necessary tricks to fulfill his contract, and that against a

MAN TRAVELS AS "LIVE ANIMAL"

Concealed In Case To Save Rail Fare

GERMAN SHOWMAN'S RUSE

A man has been travelling around Germany "packed" in a case labelled "Live animal." A showman of Gelsenkirchen decided to save railway fares by making his assistant travel from town to town as a package.

Before each journey he "packed" the man in a box with a flask of coffee, a bottle of water and some bread. Then he labelled the case "Live Animal" and delivered it at the railway goods yard.

One journey lasted twelve hours. The man in the case lost consciousness and when it arrived at its destination, the authorities, hearing no sound, concluded the "animal" inside was dead. So they opened the box. They informed the police and the showman was arrested.

logical Opening lead.

At the six tables where five clubs was the contract either a heart or a club was opened by East on the theory of adopting a waiting policy as regards the holdings in diamonds and spades. Where the contract was six clubs, East, with an apparent entry in the diamond Ace, decided to establish the setting trick by leading the King of spades, and the only loser for the Declarer against this Opening was the eventual loss of the spade Queen, the Declarer's losing diamonds being discarded on the hearts in Dummy.

Where the bidding was four clubs, the East player, reasoning that he could take many chances, opened a diamond, and only four-odd could be made.

As a result, as Mr. Davis remarks, the dangerous bid of six clubs resulted in a high score on the board. The six who bid five in one case North and South had reached the ambitious contract of six clubs, while in the remaining case North and South were pessimists and bid but four clubs. In every case, strange as it may seem, the Declarer made optimum. Perhaps the opposite the necessary tricks to fulfill his contract, and that against a

UNBEATEN CLUB FIFTEEN FACED WITH DEFEAT

WEAKENED TEAM OPPOSED TO STRENGTHENED NAVY SIDE

WITH several of their first fifteen players still on the injured list, the unbeaten Club fifteen cannot look forward with confidence to a rugby victory over the Navy tomorrow at Happy Valley.

The latter, for the first time this season, will be fielding practically their full complement and will definitely be stronger than anything the Club have encountered yet. The Navy are by no means at full strength, as they are expected several first-class men out on the Cornwall and Berwick.

RUGBY NOTES

Navy Should Carry All Before Them

TAKING TOURNAMENT SERIOUSLY

(By "REFEREE")

THE Club will not stand a very bright chance against the brilliant Navy combination this season, as at present the visitors are stronger than the Club and they have yet several outstanding players to strengthen the few weak links.

Hammett, Forbes, and Whitfield, will easily be recalled by the fact that they played in the Combined Colony side against the Australian University fifteen last season.

I hear that D. McLellan is still on the injured list and will probably be out of the game for another fortnight.

Lieut. B. L. E. Hebert, R. A., who, until recently was in charge of Army Rugby, will not be playing again as it is likely to interfere with his duties as Aide-de-Camp to the General Officer Commanding the Troops.

I hear that there is a possibility that Lt. Comdr. D. Orr Ewing, who played for the Navy in the Inter-Services' Tournament at Home and who has long since retired from the game, will be seen in an "A" fifteen game next with Dr. J. H. McElney, the Club forward who has also given up competitive rugby.

Lt. P. A. Cartwright, of H.M.S. Whitshed, who has shown good form this season, should have got a place in tomorrow's Naval fifteen. (Continued on Page 5)

K.C.C. TEAM MEET ARMY

The Kowloon Cricket Club will be represented by the following against the Army in a friendly cricket match tomorrow at Sookun-poo.

E. C. Fincher (Capt.), F. A. Munn, E. F. Fincher, A. T. Lay, R. Lee, F. S. W. Smith, W. C. Hung, F. Zimmerman, N. A. E. MacKay, A. W. Ramsay and C. I. Stapleton.

WONG WILL BE RESTED ON SUNDAY AT CAROLINE HILL

Leung Recovers From Head Injuries

ONLY SOUTH CHINA CHANGE

SOUTH China "A" will be without the services of Wong Mee-shun, their centre-half, who is being rested for Sunday's game against the Artillery at Caroline Hill. Leung Wing-chiu, who has now recovered from his head injury, will fill Wong's position.

Tay Kwee-liang, who played in spite of injuries last week in the absence of Leung Wing-chiu, will again take the field at inside-left.

Following their win over the East Lancers last Sunday, South China "B" are making no changes for their encounter against the Recreation on Sunday.

South China "B"—Wong Wah-kai; Chung Chi-ying, Yu Hing-yan; Tong Kwan, Lam Tak-po, Lee Kam, Young Sui-yick, Lai Siu-wing, Tsang King-ki, Cheuk Shek-kam and Li Shek-yau.

South China "A"—Wong Wing; Li Tin-sang, Lau Mau; Leung In-chun, Leung Wing-chiu, Lee Kwok-wai; Tso Kwai-shing, Tam Kong-pak, Tay Kwee-liang and Ip Pak-wah.

Four junior changes. Four changes have been made in South China's junior eleven for their game against Kowloon tomorrow.

Au Hing-choy, the centre-half, Hui Yiu-king, inside-left, Tan Tack-han, right-wing, and Lan Ching-kam, left-wing, have been dropped in order that less experienced players can take the field and gain experience.

The team is—Lee Chuen; Ma Ping-chong, Tang Ching-pak; Wan Cho-kei, Mok Yin-sang, Henry Young; Ip Yun-po, Kwok Yau, Ng Po-ku, Chan Tak-fai and Tse Shiu-yu.

FOUR NEW PLAYERS FOR ORDNANCES

Changes At Back And In Forward Line

The Ordnance Corps, having been strengthened by the arrival of five new players from Home, are expecting to render a good account of themselves for their fixture against the Railway tomorrow.

Unlucky to lose to the Recreation last week, the team should now improve their position in the league.

Smith, who played so well in his first match last week, and Lawlor, the right-back, have both been admitted to hospital for injuries, but their positions will be filled by McQueen and Hopkinson. O'Brien replaces Routledge as leader of the attack, and Woodcraft replaces Gormley on the left wing.

The probable team is—Hollins; McQueen, Hopkinson, Gooch, Worstfold, Brammer; Prince, Gormley, O'Brien, Duffield and Woodcraft.

HONG KONG CRICKET CLUB LEAGUE ELEVEN

The following are the Hong Kong Cricket Club teams to meet the Navy in the first and second divisions of the cricket league tomorrow.

First team (at King's Park):—A. W. Hayward (Capt.), G. S. Dunkley, T. A. Pearce, E. J. R. Mitchell, H. Owen Hughes, G. R. M. Ricketts, J. Pote Hunt, T. M. L. Redmond, H. W. Balme, J. E. Smith and E. R. Duckitt.

Second team (at home):—J. E. Pote Hunt (Capt.), W. Keith Robinson, L. D. Kilbee, E. McMahon, G. D. H. Flowerden, L. R. Simmlaine, R. S. W. Patterson, J. Stein, J. Robinson, G. A. Milbank and H. J. Armstrong.

K.C.C. JUNIOR TEAM

Playing at home against the Craignower Cricket Club the Kowloon Cricket Club juniors will be represented by the following:

ROYAL WELCH FUSILIERS POSTPONE SOCCER GAMES

The Royal Welch Fusiliers have been granted a postponement of all their week-end League football games, owing to the fact that they are not yet prepared to fulfil their engagements.

CHENG SHUI HONG LEAVES EASTERN

Interporter Joins Chinese Army As P.T.O.

The Eastern Athletic Association have lost one of their best players in Cheng Shui-hong their centre-forward, who has joined the Fourth Group Army, Kwangtung Province, as physical director.

Cheng, who is an interporter, has played for South China and the Chinese Athletic.

As a result of his departure, Soong Ning-sing will take his position at centre-forward, when they meet the Navy tomorrow.

I. Haroon, the old Eastern player, will be seen again tomorrow, at inside-left.

INTERNATIONAL MAKES ONLY BRIEF STAY IN HONG KONG

Goalkeeper Lost For Good

TYNDALL'S DEBUT FOR JUNIORS

The First Division soccer game between Kowloon and the Club, which was to have been played tomorrow on the former's ground, has been unavoidably postponed owing to a misunderstanding between the two teams.

It appears that the Club were under the impression that the game scheduled for to-morrow had been postponed by the K.F.C., owing to the Volunteers Camp, whereas Kowloon had actually asked the Football Association for a postponement of next Saturday week's game against the Navy and had already selected their team for to-morrow's encounter.

I was informed late last night that the game had been definitely postponed, and that the misunderstanding had arisen because the Association had failed to notify Kowloon earlier.

Kowloon are rather fortunate in having their home fixture postponed, for, with the Club now at full strength with Bickford and Skinner back from leave, the mainland side would have stood very little chance of recording a win.

TWO PLAYERS LEAVE

Cord, Kowloon's premier eleven goalkeeper for the past two seasons left the Colony yesterday by the troopship Somersetshire, and his presence between the sticks will be sorely missed by Kowloon supporters.

BLACKBURN OFF INJURED LIST

Police Make Two Changes

Two changes have been made in the Police team to meet the East Lancers on the Army ground tomorrow.

Blackburn and Channings have both returned from the sick list, and will be seen in their usual positions at right-back and inside-left, respectively, displacing Downman and Moss.

The team is—Perkins; Blackburn, and C. Pile; Brooks, Gough and Parker; T. Pile, Stephens, Johnson, Channings and Green.

WELCH FUSILIERS SEEK SOCCER TALENT

Six goals were shared in a soccer game played between Nos. 9 and 10 Platoons, and Nos. 11 and 12 Platoons, of "C" Company of the Royal Welch Fusiliers at Sookun-poo yesterday. Barnes, Hannum, and Davis scored for the former eleven, while Roberts (2) and Richardson netted for the latter team.

EAST LANCs MUCH IMPROVED TEAM

The run of the play when the East Lancers defeated them will be opposed to an unknown quantity in the form of the Royal Welch Fusiliers.

No stumbling block. If the first eleven is an indication of the strength of the Fusiliers' other teams, the East Lancers should not prove a stumbling block to the Lancers.

The third team, who are now at the top of the table, should have no difficulty in disposing of the Engineers.

The Probable teams are:—
F at XI: Oxford; Swain, Gorman, Power, Smith, North, O'Donnell, Bannor, Lawton, Elliott and They.

Second XI:—Harnsworth; Harwood, Steeler, Hawley, Thompson, Ekersley, Swain, Bottin, Crabtree, Ridings and Griffen.

TRIANGULAR AUSTRALIAN DUEL MAY SEE RECORD GO

THOUGH the St. Andrew's Stakes, the big race of the afternoon, is likely to be won "in a walk" by Liberty Bay, tomorrow's Race Meeting at the Valley promises some excellent finishes and substantial dividends.

The triangular duel between Mutiny Bay, Nell Gwyn, and Just That is likely to prove the titbit of the programme, and a new course record is anticipated, in addition to the possibility of a new mark being set in the St. Andrew's Stakes.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT AT CRAIGNOWER C.C.

Mixed Doubles Draws 28 Entries.

The Craignower Cricket Club are holding a Mixed Doubles American lawn tennis tournament on Sunday, commencing at 12 p.m., when the following will participate.

Mr. and Mrs. Bradbury, Mr. and Mrs. Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Cavanagh, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Phelps, Mr. and Mrs. Rhodes, Mr. and Mrs. Summons, Mr. and Mrs. V. Thomas, Miss Bradbury, Miss Laidolt, Mrs. Whitman, Mrs. Farlow, Miss White, Mr. Fox, Mr. Moran, Mr. V. Thomas, Mr. Garrett, Mr. Flynn.

Liberty Bay For Record?

The St. Andrew's Stakes is almost a foregone conclusion, and I shall be surprised if Liberty Bay, who makes his first appearance this half, does not beat his own record of 8.0.12 for the 1½ miles.

Trentbridge, who, like the Dunbar crack, has won the Derby and the Leger, has gone out three times against Liberty Bay and the nearest he has been to winning was 5 lengths in the Eastern Stakes over a mile. Liberty Bay won the St. Andrew's Stakes last year in record time, beating Sadko (Mr. Soares) by six lengths.

I understand Ribble is being reserved for the sprint event, so that there will be only four starters. Brilliant Star is not as fast as he might be, and there is little doubt that Hetman will secure third position.

EVERY ASSISTANCE FOR THE PUNTERFULL SEASON'S STATISTICS FOR TO-MORROW'S MEETING

THE following statistics for the season, essential to every punter, have been compiled to date to give the average man who knows little or nothing about form the chance of saving a few dollars from rash and reckless betting. The punter is strongly advised not to back the leading jockeys in every race—that does not generally pay at the Valley—but a glance at the list should give some indication of whether the pony the particular jockey is taking out is worth backing or not.

POOR RESPONSE TO INTERPORT HOCKEY

Sporting
Chatter

(By GEOFFREY SIMPSON)

FEW football clubs in England can be in the same fortunate position as Portsmouth.

They are free of all debt. Like the village blacksmith, they owe not any man.

This happy state of affairs is due, in part, to the Allen transfer fee of £11,000; in part to the profit of over £7,000 on last season, when they were runners-up for the Cup. But at the bottom of all this good fortune is the unceasing thought and labour of the management.

A CHAPMAN PARALLEL

IT was a particularly happy day for the Portsmouth club when some seven years ago, they engaged Mr. Jack Tinn as manager.

He had done wonderful work for sport in South Shields, where he held a job, I believe, as a clerk in the local county court office.

During his time at Portsmouth he has seen his club, a stalwart of the old Southern League days, twice get into the Cup final.

A NEW stand has been built, ground for further extension purchased, and the club rid of a debt of something like £30,000.

Mr. Tinn has, in fact, accomplished for Portsmouth almost what Mr. Herbert Chapman did for the Arsenal. But it would be hard to find in football two men of such distinctive types. The one thing they had in common was a capacity for hard, continuous work.

WHITCOMBE'S CUP

CHARLES WHITCOMBE tells me he is putting on a challenge cup of his own design for the annual competition in which he opposes members of his club—Crew Hill, Enfield.

PREPARATIONS FOR TRIANGULAR

RADIO'S RE-ENTRY

ENGINEERS BECOME NEW MAMAK MENACE

ALTHOUGH no further news has been received from Singapore, the Hong Kong Hockey Association are making full preparations for the impending visit of a local team to the Straits early in February.

Applications have been sent to all club Secretaries asking for names of players who can make the trip if chosen, but up to the present no replies have been received from any of the civilian clubs. Only three names of Military officers are to hand so far.

It goes without saying that unless a sufficiently strong team can be raised, the visit will not be made. I understand that the naval representative, Surg. Lt. Comdr. Phillips has intimated to the Association that several of the naval vessels will be in Singapore at the time, but that the navy will not be able to give as strong support as in last season.

Full particulars of the intended programme of matches in Singapore and Malaya are now awaited.

CIVILIANS v. SERVICES

In contrast to the interport circular, over 20 names have been received from the secretaries of civilian clubs for the trials in preparation for the Civilian Services United Services match on December 16.

The Committee are now dealing with the matter and the date of the first trial will be announced shortly.

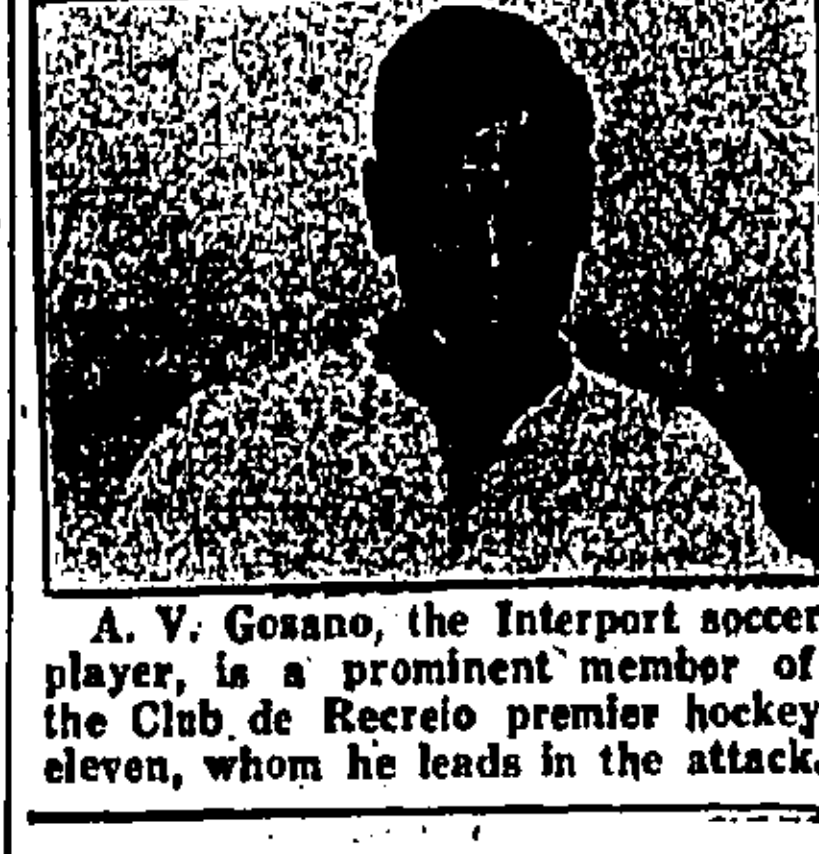

THIRD ARMY TRIAL

The third Army trial in preparation for the Triangular Tournament takes place this evening on the U.S.R.C. ground.

Previous trials have revealed that the Army have a collection of very capable players and that their chances of carrying off the honours are very bright indeed.

W. O. Senior has been the leading goal-scorer, and some very fine displays have been put up by the other selected players. The actual team will be announced after to-night's game.

(By "STICKS")

A. V. Gosano, the Interport soccer player, is a prominent member of the Club de Recreo premier hockey eleven, whom he leads in the attack.

Goal-Scoring List

Senior now leads the Mamak goal-scoring list with 14 goals, while Gurbachan Singh follows closely with 11.

PUNJAB REGIMENT OVER-RUN
RECREIO AT HOCKEY

The Punjab Regiment easily beat the Club de Recreo in a friendly hockey encounter on the Marina ground yesterday, winning by four goals to nil. Mohamed Asar (2), Kartar Singh and Lieut. Walker scored the goals.

Y.M.C.A. DISAPPOINTED

Owing to a misunderstanding the Y.M.C.A. second eleven turned up at the Police Training School ground yesterday only to find that the Police had no knowledge that they had a fixture with them.

"Y" LADIES BEAT RECREIO

In a friendly hockey game yesterday on the Diocesan Girls' School ground the "Y" Ladies defeated the Recreo Ladies first eleven by an only goal scored by Miss P. McCaw late in the second half.

WONG WILL BE RESTED ON SUNDAY AT CAROLINE HILL

Mok Yim-sang will fill the pivot position, while Kwok Yau-loy, Ip Yun-po and Tse Shiu-yu will take the inside-right, right-wing and left-wing positions, respectively. Chan Tak-fai has been moved to inside-left.

THE many persistent rumours of the Radio rejoining the Mamak Tournament are now taking shape in the form of a discussion on Monday night by the Mamak Tournament Committee.

It is understood that Mr. F. A. Kemp, captain of the Radio, will be present at the meeting, and the result may be that the Radio will take part in the competition after all.

The trouble, as is now well-known, originated from an incident which occurred last season when the Radio walked off the field before time in a tournament match. Action, however, was not taken until this season when the Radio were asked to undertake that this would not occur again.

R. E. New Challengers

Defeating the Royal Corps of Signals by 5 goals to nil last week, the Royal Engineers, who held the Police, Mamak champions, to a goalless draw, are now the new challengers in the Mamak Tournament.

Whittaker Safe in Goal

Whittaker deserves much of the credit for the Signals' record, as his display in goal has been exceptionally good. The Engineers have two good players in Captain Foley and Wood, at centre-half, while the whole team plays with good combination and understanding. Among the notable forwards are Revell and Pegg.

Signals Suffer Loss

The Royal Corps of Signals have lost three valuable players in Higginsbottom, Whitehead, and Cross, who left yesterday "for Home on the troopship."

Whitehead was exceptional as a goal-scorer, and topped the Mamak goal-scoring list until last week. Cross, who was always very safe in goal, while replaced by Shaw, while Addis, a new player from Tientsin who has just arrived, will fill Whitehead's place in the forward line.

May will take Higginsbottom's place at outside-right. Fielding left hospital this week and will now return to assist the Signals. A new officer to the Corps is Lt. Holmes, and he will assist the Signals in their future matches.

GOLF

(By "FAIRWAY")

SUNDAY sees the first round ties in the Club Championship down for settlement at Fanling. The reversion to the qualifying system should insure that the games are more or less even and that no player may expect a virtual walk-over. I hear unfortunate news that P. H. Scoones has been invalided to hospital, and, in all probability, will have to scratch to H. U. Ireland. If this news should prove correct it removes one of the dark horses from the competition. I look to seeing K. S. Robertson, R. Young, T. A. Pearce and A. E. Lissaman in the semi-finals with the odds on the last named as the probable winner. Lissaman is turning out regular rounds of steady scores in the low 70's just now.

THE LATEST GRUMBLE

THERE is much grumbling at Fanling at present, especially in the Ladies' Club House, at the edict of the General Committee regarding the serving of teas. The reduction in price was long overdue and the general ruling that a meal of this nature, consisting of other than a pot of tea, must be signed for as "one tea" is very reasonable. I understand that the lengths certain members went to describe their meals on chits as say "One Cup of tea, one piece of toast, one biscuit" in the hope of being charged less than 75 cts. was ridiculous and extremely aggravating to the accounts department. Certain persons, if they are able, will be annoying, trifling, and will waste the more valuable time of other persons at every opportunity. So far, so good. But when one is informed that no tea can be served before four o'clock or that abnormal tea cannot be accompanied by such items as ham and eggs then comes a legitimate grouse. A member is always entitled to ask for what he wants, and in refusing to supply ham and eggs with tea the House Committee have chosen the wrong occasion to say "we regret but you cannot have this". A request of this nature is fair and reasonable, and, as such, with the club functioning for the general benefit of members, should be acceded to.

WALLACE LOOKING AROUND

GREATNESS is thrust upon some indeed — and often snatched ruthlessly away again! James Wallace, the runner-up in this year's "Amateur" accepted a professional appointment at Seledon Park immediately after the final. It now turns out that this was only a six-months appointment possibly on probation, and at the expiry thereof Wallace has found himself succeeded by W. L. Ritchie. There is a feeling that the other professionals were against his original appointment, and that certainly would not help Wallace in settling down to his new choice of occupation. Meanwhile, he is left looking around, and, doubtless, all golfers will sympathise with him and wish him of the best in the future.

MACNIDER IN GOAL

Several changes have been made in the Kowloon junior team to meet South China.

MacNider, the reserve goalkeeper, comes into the team as Boyes has been promoted to the first eleven. As Willis has also been promoted, Hickman falls back on his pivotal position to left-back. Tyndall, a newcomer to the Club, filling his place.

Thomson, who has not yet played this season, will be seen on the right wing in place of Blacklock who is being rested.

SAINTS MEET "Y" IN CUP SERIES

The St. Andrew's Ladies, present leaders in the Caer Clark Cup hockey tournament, meet the "Y" Ladies at King's Park to-morrow for the first time this season.

The Saints are making several changes in their team owing to the inability of Miss Kroutakaya to take her place among the forwards.

Mr. E. Rose will return to her usual position between the sticks, while Miss E. Landolt, who has partnered Miss G. White at full-back, will move up to left-half, leaving her place to be filled by Miss L. Jorje.

Mr. M. Berreux fills the vacancy among the forwards caused by the absence of Miss Kroutakaya. The "Y" have seemingly solved their intermediate line problem by playing Miss L. Hickey at left-half in support of Miss S. Dalziel, while Miss M. Gardiner will be on the other flank.

"THE SCARLET EMPRESS" ONE OF SCREENDOM'S BEST

HAROLD LLOYD ATTEMPTS SOMETHING NEW IN "THE CAT'S PAW"

"JIMMY THE GENT" FAST-MOVING CAGNEY DRAMA

AFTER pre-viewing the Paramount production of "The Scarlet Empress," I can only describe it as magnificent. To my mind it is one of the most brilliant pictures of the talkie era.

While I do not pretend to know how far it departs from historical truth (the opening caption states that it is taken from the private diary of the Empress) I would say that it bears the impression of conviction, and surely the definition of the imbecile Grand Duke Peter, as played by Sam Jaffe (although I admit he bore an uncanny resemblance to Harpo Marx) is more accurate than that of the idealised handsome version we saw recently portrayed by Douglas Fairbanks Jr. The verdict as to which I leave to their respective admirers to settle.

This time I am dealing with the famous German girl, the discovery of von Sternberg—Marlene Dietrich. She is indescribably beautiful in the gorgeous gowns of the period. She does more than merely move through as though in a dream, but her voice is a little too low-pitched, and I dislike that habit she has adopted of dropping her mouth open, when she wants to express the innocence of youth. For once, von Sternberg permits her to do more than pose beautifully for the camera, and she gives a really fine acting performance.

The newcomer, John Lodge (seen here in a small part, in "Little Women"), makes a savage contemptuous lover, which reveals him as an actor of promise.

Louise Dresser's conception of the Empress Elizabeth is a striking one. She makes it human and forceful. In its weird mixture of queenly and slatternly qualities.

The minor parts are well played. Credit must go to the camera men, even though the director seemed to gloat over the grinning hideous deformed gargoyles, until I began to wonder if there was anything of beauty to be found in the vast palace.

I think it foolish to compare this colourful, colossal Hollywood production with the Korda British one. This is so much grander. We are shown scene after scene of the palace, the wedding scene (correctly staged, which it was not in the other) is one I will never forget. That sputtering candle, the close-ups of the tragic face of the lovely bride—the half-mad bridegroom, the jealous lover—and the music.

Then, too, this version deals with the life history of the young Prussian, Princess Sophia Frederica (her name was changed to Catherine Alexina by her mother-in-law), and the opening shots show us the small daughter of the star-Maria Sieber, (who speaks her few lines clearly, but does not seem destined to inherit the beauty of her mother) as the little girl listening to tales of horror instead of fairy tales. These opening sequences of cruelty and torture might be eliminated, and are not for the squeamish.

Then follows the departure of the lovely innocent girl, the marriage to the imbecile Grand Duke, the domination by the Empress, the loathing of her husband, and the tragic climax reached when she discovers the infidelity of the man she loves. That night she changes her whole character, and then we move on to her great destiny as the woman beloved of her soldiers, who gains their sympathy.

Merle Oberon, (Queenie Thompson), the little girl with the Indian mother and the English father, who used to work in a shop in Calcutta, now denies that she will marry the millionaire. Producer Joseph Schenck. But maybe this is the spirit of Basil Dean and Victoria Hopper who denied their engagement, and then the next day went off and secretly married. Anyhow Merle Oberon is to be starred by her husband in Hollywood.

chies, and wins her country to rule.

Von Sternberg returns to the movie technique of 20 years ago. Dialogue is kept to a minimum, and we have reel after reel with only a caption or two. Like Charles Chaplin, this director recognizes the value of action without words, when shown to millions who do not speak the English language.

The last scenes are stirring in the extreme, showing the wild ride of the Cossacks headed by their lovely Empress up the flights of stairs flanked by her soldiers. Some of the critics objected to this circus-like stunt, but it is stated in history, so, as it lends to showmanship, we will let it go at that. I have only one criticism—the American accents of most of the cast—but once you are accustomed to it, you find yourself carried away by the magnificence of the production, barbaric, cruel, primitive in the settings, but making for entertainment value of the highest order. Personal recommendation. (Queen's).

HAROLD Lloyd has a winner in China in his new release "The Cat's Paw" from an original story by Clarence Kellogg. Whether it will mean his usual box-office attraction elsewhere remains to be proved.

He departs from formula, and gives us an innocent young man, born in China, of American missionary parents, who goes to America to find a wife, and finds himself unwillingly mixed up with politics and crooked leaders. This calls for his Oriental philosophy and formal politeness to bear in dealing with his new friends and enemies.

It is a new departure for Lloyd—to get away from gag-comedy and depend on story and melodrama. Luckily he has surrounded himself with an excellent cast—Una Merkel, Grace Bradley, Alan Dinehart, the late Alec B. Francis, Warren Hymer, Nat Pendleton, George Barbier, and Vince Barnett just to mention a few, not forgetting the crowds of real Chinese extras.

Be it noted that this time Harold Lloyd was not taking any chances of failure. I say his first talkie in America, "Welcome Danger," and because he offended the tastes of the Chinese in his delineation of certain characters, the film had to be withdrawn in Shanghai, and was not shown anywhere else.

This time he has had the personal supervision of the Chinese background by a representative of the National Government. Sam Taylor does first-class work as Director, the cast all do well, but Harold Lloyd does not seem quite at home, and often fails to make the most of his opportunities. Then, too, to British and other audiences the politics are so strange, and rather detract from the interest of the story. The trick climax is extremely well done, and there is quite a deal of suspense, holding the interest of the audience, but, to my mind, it will be above the head of the average film fan. Anyhow, as always, the Harold Lloyd films are clean and wholesome fun and are intended for the whole family. (King's).

"She Was A Lady" starring Helen Twelvetrees, finds her as the daughter of Ralph Morgan, who married Doris Lloyd, his mother's maid. After her father's death our heroine fulfils his dying wish that she goes to England to be a lady. Snubbed, she takes to a gambling den, and meets the hero, Donald Woods.

Helen Twelvetrees does a fine acting job, and the same can be said of Doris Lloyd.

Just another picture without any special recommendations, but may pass a pleasant evening (Alhambra).

"Jimmy The Gent" From the beginning of a James Cagney film to the end there is speedy action. (Continued on Page 12)

Careers Of The Stars

MARLENE DIETRICH was born in 1902 in Berlin. Her father was an Army officer, and Marlene was educated privately. She intended following the profession of a concert pianist, but an accident to her wrist prevented this, and she turned to the stage and screen. Von Sternberg gave her the first big chance in "Blue Ansel" with Emil Jannings. She went with her director to Paramount in 1930, and has remained ever since. She is married to Rudolph Sieber, and they have one daughter.

JOHN LODGE is the grandson of a one-time famous Senator of the Congress, and after graduating from Harvard, married law in New York. He made his first screen with the dancer actress VERA-ELLEN (Beverly Sills) and was offered a screen test. His first chance was in "Little Women" and then came "The Scarlet Empress."

Rearmament

Nothing could well be more disheartening than the recent debate on the King's speech. One looks in vain for anything like a new spirit or even a realistic appreciation of the present state of affairs. Instead there is every month a closer approximation to the sort of incident and the tone of discussion that kept Europe in a state of suppressed panic thirty years ago. Mr. Baldwin is no alarmist, and nobody could be less of a freer. We may take it for granted that when he considers it necessary to take precautions there is something that justifies the abandonment of the appeal to reason. And still it seems incredible that no lesson at all should have been learned from the tragedies of the last thirty years.

It would be a vain quest to look for anything in the actual events of the day to explain the spread of the spirit of unrest, which is due to a deep current of feeling that shapes the events. The best thing that could happen would be that the nations should acquire the power of explaining their aims and ambitions frankly, and coming to some understanding as to how far they could be realised. The despised League of Nations was intended to make that possible; the measure of the failure of statesmanship is the apparently hopeless idealism of such a suggestion. It is still true that opinions are not weighed by the arguments that support them, but by the guns and rifles that could be called upon to enforce them. The old definition of the sophists holds good, that "Justice is the interest of the stronger."

Small as the actual power of the League may be, it is quite obvious that withdrawal from it carries a certain amount of disability. It is taken to mean that the Power that withdraws has adopted a policy which is incapable of being argued before an impartial tribunal. Some day people will come to realise that one of the great disinfectants of international relations is publicity. The careful collection of fact and figures by a disinterested organisation like the Secretariat of the League, which can ask for further details without suspicion of having undisclosed motives; and accuracy, kills exaggeration. If it be true that the German air fleet consists of between 600 and 1000 planes, even the higher figure is only about a third of what has been given by some of the sensational-mongers.

During the Gladstonian period

England oscillated between periods of quiescent confidence and sudden alarms. Always there was a large majority of people that thought that whatever forces might be built up there was a big chance that they would never be used. The passing of that illogical but comfortable frame of mind is one of the differences of the two generations. If somebody goes to the expense of building a battleship or an airplane they get the credit for having enough sense not to be wasting their money unless they mean to use the armament, and the questions asked are merely when? and where? When Lord Charles Bessford and Mr. W. T. Stead started their campaign for a modern fleet to balance that which was being built up by Admiral Tirpitz and the Kaiser it was a common objection that a friendly nation like the German could not intend to use their ships against England. Nowadays no country would harbour any illusions of that sort. The only fact considered is the existence of the ship; not the chance of future policy. Every additional squadron of airplanes is a reason for four or five other nations to build a new squadron.

The fact is that in our rapidly developing world we have reached a new stage. The period of experimenting with new weapons is nearing its end, and a degree of efficiency has been reached when the process will be rather multiplication than improvement. The fear of insolvency no longer has its old deterrent force, for there is no Government that has met all its financial obligations, and money no longer seems to be anything substantial. Disarmament has failed, and the actual process of rearment, while even the object has been reduced to "armament limitation," "Armament Equality" would be a mere will o' the wisp, in face of a joint agreement for security and the enforcement of international law by all the nations acting together. To that we shall have to come sooner or later.

FOUR WOMEN FINED

Dutiable Tobacco In Their Possession

Four Chinese women were charged before Mr. E. I. Wynne Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning with having dutiable Chinese tobacco in their possession at the Yau-mat Railway station at 12.10 p.m. yesterday. Revenue Officer Brown stated that all four were arrested as they alighted from the Shamshun train and that they were all in the one party. Cho Hei, a 70-year-old widow, was fined $30, in default 14 days

HERE, THERE and EVERYWHERE

CLARKSON AND THE "YARD"

It is not generally known how close an ally the late Willie Clarkson was at one time of the Criminal Investigation Department. There was a small make-up room at the Yard, but detectives found that their disguises were often washed away by a shower of rain. It was decided to seek expert aid. Sir Edward Henry, the former Commissioner, chose four officers—one of them was ex-Superintendent Savage, who has just retired—and sent them to Clarkson. Sir Edward told each of them to bring back two photographs of himself. One was to show him dressed for Ascot and the other for Limehouse. The photographs were so successful that from that time Clarkson became the Yard's official make-up man.

SHADOWING A GANG

CLARKSON'S best service to the Yard was given in the case of the famous robbery of Mr. Max Mayer's $100,000 pearl necklace.

It was necessary for the late Cammy Grizzard's gang of jewel thieves to be shadowed for many weeks. Unfortunately, the two best men for the job, ex-Superintendent Cooper and ex-Superintendent Cornish, were known by each member of the gang.

Clarkson hit on the idea of making Cooper up as an ordinary uniformed policeman.

The gang were so busy looking for shadows in plain clothes that they took no notice of the ordinary patrolling policeman. The result was that Cooper was able to get near enough to them to hear them talking of their plans.

MOCK MURDER

ON another occasion Clarkson helped to stage a mock murder. Some young men who were going to a Covent Garden ball sought his help to carry out a spectacular imposture.

When the ball was at its height the dancers were horrified to see that in an upper box the late Sir Augustus Harris, the famous Drury Lane theatrical manager, was being attacked by some men in evening dress.

A minute or so later they saw Sir Augustus hurried from the box down to the ballroom floor.

Women screamed and fainted and there was general consternation.

Then it was discovered that the "body" was a dummy model of Sir Augustus. It had been made by Clarkson.

Ko Kam and Kwong Shing, two electricians, were taken to the Kowloon Hospital yesterday suffering from burns caused by nitric acid while working at the Cosmopolitan Dock.

Imprisonment for having 3½ pounds, Cho Mun, a 80-year-old widow, was fined $14, in default one week's imprisonment for having 1½ pounds, Cho Yan, a 52-year-old married woman, was fined the same as the first defendant for having the same amount of tobacco in her possession, and Wong King, a 25-year-old widow, was fined $72, in default one month's imprisonment.

"NEW DEAL" AFFECTS ALL ACTIVITIES AMERICA'S BURDEN THIS WINTER

DIVIDED OPINIONS OF FUTURE

(By Victor Cazalet, M.P.)

London. There is much grumbling and a good deal of discontent at the Government's policy. It has directly interfered with the workings of every industry. It would, I think, be true to say that no one is in favour of everything the Government has done; but, on the other hand, everyone will concede that much of the President's policy has been not only right, but absolutely essential.

Business interests, on the whole, are both critical and opposed to many of the Government's activities. The masses, on the other hand, warmly support the President and all his works.

The two cities constituted little worlds of their own, and were quite indifferent as to what each thought of the other. To-day that is all changed.

Washington is not only the political capital, but its edicts and regulations dictate the terms upon which business can be transacted throughout the whole country.

The New Deal has already entered effectively into almost every activity of business. It has altered the lives of millions of workers, whether it be the girl in the cotton mill, the page boy in the hotel, or the clerk in the office. The New Deal can be divided into three main sections.

1.—That dealing with banking, securities, finance, currency, public expenditure, and relief.
2.—The National Recovery Administration, which deals with conditions of labour, Government planning, control of production, price-fixing, &c.
3.—The Agricultural Adjustment Administration, which regulates and subsidises the production of agricultural produce.

Huge Expenditure

In regard to the first, few disapprove of much that has been done with reference to the banks, or, indeed, with the regulations which have been taken to curb Stock Exchange speculations. The stringent conditions, however, upon which new issues may be made have retarded, no doubt, the development of new business.

The policy of depreciating the dollar seemed unavoidable. What the final result will be or what further changes in the currency may be made is still a matter of speculation.

Government expenditure has been on a vast scale. The present Administration has spent so far $1,250,000,000—how much of this sum will be recovered is difficult to calculate. Both relief and money for public works have been handed out on a very generous scale. So far, little if any control has been exercised over this expenditure.

During the coming winter it is estimated that one out of every five families in the United States will be dependent upon Government relief. In spite of this vast expenditure of money, the financial resources and credit of the Government appear still inexhaustible.

Farmers' Portion

Much of the N.R.A. embraces social reforms, which we in England might perhaps think were long overdue. The exclusion of child labour in the South, the regulation of hours and conditions of work, the recognition of unions—these, no doubt, have come to stay. As regards general planning and price fixing, they are being rapidly and quietly dropped.

The agricultural policy has, perhaps, been the most successful. Local farmers' committees in every State have co-operated to carry out the Government's schemes. There has been a drastic reduction of crops sown, and a curtailment in the production of livestock.

Considerable payments have been made to the farmers on the basis of what they have not produced. Only a few weeks ago some $20,000,000 was distributed to the pig producers. The theory is that this money will be recovered by the Government through the medium of what is known as a Processing Tax. This is a tax levied on the manufacturers and retailers who use agricultural products, whether it be cotton for shirts or wheat for bread.

There is much grumbling and a good deal of discontent at the Government's policy. It has directly interfered with the workings of every industry. It would, I think, be true to say that no one is in favour of everything the Government has done; but, on the other hand, everyone will concede that much of the President's policy has been not only right, but absolutely essential.

Business interests, on the whole, are both critical and opposed to many of the Government's activities. The masses, on the other hand, warmly support the President and all his works.

The size of the experiment is bewildering. There are 8,000,000 unemployed, 6,000,000 farmers, a continent the size of Australia, and practically no Civil Service. The riches of America are, indeed, unbounded.

Her National Debt is even now only just about the same as that of England. Her taxation, although as high in certain cases as in Great Britain, does not embrace anything like the number of small income-tax payers. A married man with children practically escapes payment up to £1,000 per annum.

The methods of evading direct income taxation by setting off capital losses, and the large amount of tax-free securities, open up loopholes which the individual is not slow to develop.

The most general criticism levelled against the administration by both opponents and supporters is the "lack of some central control."

Money is being spent like water, and no one is asking that an adequate return be given for each dollar expended. So long as the money lasts all is well. If prosperity returns, then the country will easily be able to carry the increased expenditure. General confidence has certainly not yet been re-established.

On the whole, the East and Chicago are pessimistic and antagonistic to the regime, while the West and the South support it.

Nation's Confidence

Now there will be no further elections for two years. It is during that time that the President will, no doubt, do much useful work in co-ordinating and reshaping the various aspects of the New Deal—that is, if Congress does not interfere.

Opinion as to the future is very divided. While some predict a very slow, but sure recovery, others believe that another crash is inevitable before prosperity returns. Few, however, are so despondent as not to believe that the United States will emerge again as a great and prosperous nation to play her part in world recovery.

ROOSEVELT'S BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

Another nation-wide celebration of President Roosevelt's birthday will be held in America on January 30 to raise funds for the fight against infantile paralysis.

ST. ANDREW'S DAY
BROADCASTMessage From Scottish Studios

COMPLEX PROGRAMME

London, To-day.
The day of St. Andrew will be celebrated in B.B.C. Transmission 4 with a programme relayed from the Scottish studios at Edinburgh at 8.30 p.m. G.M.T. Its title will be "News out of Scotland."

As the day is regarded by many as a festival of exiles from Scotland rather than a purely local celebration, the purport of the programme might best be described as a message to Scots all over the world of what Scotland is doing in this year of 1934.

The new Cunarder, the Gaelic Mod, the unemployed, the grouse moors, drama, music—all these will be described and reflected in the programme which will show too, how Scotland is reacting to the great cosmopolitan influences that are spreading all over the world. Scotland is proud of its traditions, yet radiantly progressive.

Despite its complex nature, the programme, devised by George Blake, will be presented simply. Two voices, contrasted in type and character to aim, will carry on a conversation, each one showing two different sides of the Scotland of 1934.

Their dialogue will be supported by music, drama, effects, and recorded recollections of outstanding events broadcast during the year in Scotland, many of which were included in the Empire transmissions.

St. Andrew's connection with Scotland is of the slenderest. The Saint, as is generally known, was a brother of St. Peter, who, after the Ascension, journeyed through Greece, Russia, and Asia Minor as a missionary until in about A. D. 70 the Roman proconsul of the Roman proconsul of Patra had him crucified on the peculiar x-shaped cross which now bears his name. It is said that, three hundred years after his death, St. Andrew's remains were removed to Scotland by a pious Greek traveller, and buried where now the city of St. Andrews stands.—B. B. C. EUROPEAN WOMEN
FINEDLearner's Car License
In Wrong Street

Mr. R. V. Strijevsky, of the Peninsula Hotel, and driver of private car No. 2502, and Miss I. Ongsted were fined $5 each, by Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy this morning, for allowing an owner of a learner's driving license to drive in a road not specified in the license, and for driving in a road not specified in a learner's license, respectively.

The traffic sergeant stated that Miss Ongsted was driving the car in Main Street, Shaikwan, towards the Talkoo Dockyard on November 20, when she drove into a road where a breach of her license was committed.

Hau Choi-sui, driver of private car No. 358, and Kwok Kit-sing, owner of a learner's license, were summoned for a similar offence in Wongneichong Road on November 19, and were each fined $5.

INTERNATIONAL TEA
COMMITTEE REGULATION

Stocks began to rise, and with additional qualities released this year from regulating countries, it is to be anticipated that stocks will rise further.

As there is little prospect that immediate consumption will grow proportionately, curtailment of exports is necessary in order to regularise stocks.

THE WORLD'S DRUG
SUPPLIESEstimates For Needs
Prepared

SUPERVISORY BODY'S TASK

(By HEBE SPAULL)

On November 1 the estimates of the world's needs of dangerous drugs for next year were published by the Supervisory Body set up by the Convention for the Limitation of the Manufacture of Dangerous Drugs.

This is the second year that such estimates have been prepared but, as last year was something in the nature of an experimental period, this year's figures give a more complete picture of the working of the Convention.

The Supervisory Body, when it met in October, pointed out that last year it had received by the correct date estimates for 53 countries and territories out of a total of 188, whereas last year only 12 had been received by the correct date.

The Supervisory Body admits that its task in providing for the universal application of the system of estimates is by no means easy. As was stated by the Assembly, the Convention provides the only piece of machinery as yet set up by the League which is truly universal, applying as it does to every State and every separate administrative unit in the world.

A little later in November the League's Advisory Committee on the Traffic in Opium and other Dangerous Drugs met in Geneva. This body, the oldest of the three set up by the League to deal with the drug menace, is concerned with watching over the traffic as a whole and not with a particular method of control. It sees where loopholes occur and plans ahead further measures as and when required.

It has, for instance, already recognised the need for a further Convention limiting the production of raw materials. But a very great deal of preparatory work will have to be done before it is possible to call a conference to conclude such a Convention.

THEFT ON BOARD
TANDAYOUNG BOY USED TO MAKE ENTRY

MAGISTRATE'S OUTBURST

"What do you mean by leading the young boy astray. You are a scoundrel. You knew all the time that the boy was stealing," said Mr. E. I. Wynne Jones to Chan Ping, a 22-year-old boiler cleaner, who was charged with stealing 11 pieces of engine fittings from the engine store-room on board the s.s. Tanda, lying at the Kowloon Wharf, and who pleaded that he was helping the boy, who was charged in the juvenile court this morning, to carry the things away.

It was stated that the defendant lifted the boy up to the large ventilator, which led into the store-room, and the boy crawled along it until he entered the store-room. After stealing the things the boy passed them out of the ventilator, and both defendants were arrested while carrying the box from the ship. The value of the property, which belongs to the Eastern and Australian Steamship Company, was valued at $5 (Australian money). Mr. Wynne Jones stated that as the defendant admitted helping the boy, he had pleaded guilty to the alternative charge of receiving stolen property, and accordingly sentenced him to three months' hard labour.

To-day's Short Story.

BOTH WAYSBy Peter
Shannon

"I AM not prepared to argue with you whether book-makers as a class are honest or not," said my host, pushing the port across the table. "But I'll not deny that some of them have a sense of humour. It all started with my sending, that big black mare of mine, Jessica, over to England—you may remember. We haven't very excellent railway facilities here, only one train in, and one out, per day, but we do possess a magnificent station-master named McGinty, and a bright young porter."

"I went down one morning to see McGinty about making arrangements, and casually told him to have a bit on her at Wolverhampton as she would probably win. The old man showed surprising ignorance about racing, and didn't even know the first thing about how to make a bet or where to put it. Not without reason, really; as if you entrusted a shilling to anyone round here for any purpose whatsoever, you would be unlikely ever to see it again."

"So I told McGinty to write to Grabb and Take, of Liverpool, not to send any money, but to write and open an account and tell 'em what he wanted on the mare. I thought—mistakenly, as it turned out—that he could manage such a simple affair."

"Mister McGinty, as they call him here, likes his pint, and in Flanagan's bar that evening he passed on to the company what I had told him. The news spread like wild-fire. The glorious part of it was that you did not have to send any money; you just told the lunatics. Messrs. Grabb and Take, what you wanted on the horse, and if it won they sent you five or six times the amount. 'Sure, it is a wild heathen country, England, and strange things do happen over there to be sure.'"

"Bridget Donovan, at the Post Office, told me afterwards that she'd never done such a trade in nibs, paper, and envelopes. She even sold a few dictionaries that she had thought she would never get shift. Messrs. Grabb and Take, who knew me, presumably thought this outburst of support was on account of its being my horse. Anyhow, they took it as O.K., and sent to all applicants a polite letter and a little leather book of rules, which threw them into ecstasies of delight. As Rory O'Sullivan put it, 'They've sent us little books with a lot of writing in them, and tables to work out how much we've won.'"

"Did she win?" I couldn't help asking.

"Win. Of course, she won—by six lengths and at odds of 8½ to 1 too! The place went mad—and when all the money arrived at the end of the week Flanagan was drunk out of beer by nine o'clock. There were several fights, I believe, over working out the winnings."

TO-MORROW'S STORY

To-morrow's story will be "Personal," by Harold Wimbury.

"Mind you, I knew nothing at all about it, being over in London, but on my return I was met at the station by the entire village—O'Flaherty played something on his cracked cornet. They cheered me to the echo, and—well—to get rid of them, I called out, 'Glad you took the tip, boys; back her again on Friday week.'"

"Of course, that did the trick. Those who had held back for fear of a catch in it somewhere now joined in enthusiastically. Those who had previously put on five shillings now made it ten, and those who had invested ten shillings made it one pound. Not one of these wretched children seemed to understand that there was such a thing as paying if you lost."

"But Flanagan pointed out craftily that if they all put on a hundred pounds they would take all Mr. Grabb's money and perhaps all Mr. Take's too, and then they wouldn't get paid out, or they might give up being philanthropists and take to dominoes."

"So they decided to put on a pound each only, though, as it turned out later, some of the sly ones made it a bit more when no one was there to watch 'em."

"And what happened?" I asked, lighting another cigar.

"She won again—odds 4 to 1. This time when the money arrived the population deserted en masse to Monaghan, fifteen miles off, and bought pigs and suits of clothes and bonnets for their wives and trinkets for their daughters, and everything they's coveted for years. Everyone was happy except Flanagan, who said there was no one left over the week-end to buy his beer!"

"So . . . I said thoughtfully.

"Now, where does the snag come in?"

"The trouble," said my host, "without which Ireland never is for very long, begins now. Jessica was not due to run again for some time, and the young bloods grew restive. Then they had a brain-storm. Why, they asked, should they wait for Jessica to run at all? Was there not racing every day in England? For a penny you could buy the London paper in Monaghan in which, so it was said, a gentleman who called himself 'The Wizard' gave a list of the day's winners. Why not back them all and get rich much more quickly?"

"Jim, who drives our engine, was commissioned to buy the paper in Monaghan, and drop it at the level-crossing when he got out to open the gates. This was when he took the early morning train through to Cothlene—the level-crossing being about a mile from here on another line. The paper was retrieved and brought to Flanagan's bar. It turned out that the young men were right. There were six races at a place called Hurst Park, and 'The Wizard' gave the winner of each of them. Betts poured into the offices of Messrs. Grabb and Take."

"Did they all win?" I asked, concealing a smile behind my hand.

"Only one," said my host. "Only one, and that was at 6 to 2 on, which he one could work out in spite of the ready reckoner. But (Continued on Page 12)

WHOLE WORLD LISTENS IN TO
ROYAL WEDDING

Early reports from many distant parts show that the Archbishop's comment was, in fact, an understatement.

PERFECT RECEPTION

In Greece, the Netherlands, Norway, Denmark and Yugoslavia, where the Duchess of Kent has family associations, perfect reception of the broadcast was reported, and even the responses of the bride and bridegroom were heard as clearly as by those gathered around the altar.

In many other European countries, Sweden, France, Germany, Finland, Roumania, Hungary and Austria, for example, in which the wedding had aroused interest, wireless listeners maintained intimate touch with the solemn proceedings in Westminster Abbey. Throughout the North American continent and particularly in the United States and Canada, the service was also followed by wireless listeners.

LONDON'S FINAL CHEER
All the way to Farringdon Station great crowds lined the route and London's final cheer went up as the Royal train steamed out bearing the happy couple on their honeymoon.

Probably the most impressive scene during the day occurred when, after returning from the celebration at the private chapel at Buckingham Palace, the bride and bridegroom appeared on the balcony in front of the Palace before which an immense crowd filled the great enclosure around Queen Victoria Memorial and stretched far up the Mall. They were joined by the King and Queen and Prince Nicholas and some other members of the Royal party. British Wireless Service.

AIR TOURISTS FOR

From Karachi they left the next morning for Bombay with their objective as Bangkok. From the Siamese capital they intend to proceed eastward and fully intend to come to Shanghai although they had not yet set down any specific plans.

However, they gave it to be understood that they would most probably ship their plane from here to America if they were able to come this far.

4 tablespoons flour
2 egg yolks
3 tablespoons lemon juice

1 tablespoon butter
Blend sugar and flour. Add remaining ingredients. Cook slowly, stir constantly until filling becomes thick and creamy. Cool and use as filling between baked cake layers. Cover with frosting.

1/3 cup powdered sugar
2 teaspoon vanilla
Salt
2 egg whites
Whip cream, add sugar, vanilla and salt. Fold in beaten egg whites. Turn into refrigerator trays and freeze 3 to 4 hours.

HOLIDAY FRUIT

½ pound prunes
1 inch stick cinnamon
6 whole cloves
1 package gelatin, lemon flavour
1 cup hot prune juice
¼ to ½ cup brown sugar
¾ cup orange juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ cup sliced figs
½ cup seeded raisins
¼ cup sliced citron
¼ cup shredded almonds
Soak prunes in enough water to cover. Add cinnamon and cloves; cook slowly in same water until soft. Remove pits and chop prunes. Measure 1 cup prune juice, heat to boiling. Dissolve gelatin in prune juice. Add sugar, orange and lemon juice. Chill until mixture begins to thicken; add prunes and remaining ingredients. Chill in pudding mould until firm. Serve with pudding sauce, flavoured with grated orange rind.

CHOCOLATE SYRUP FOR COLD DRINKS

1 package chocolate pudding
1 cup cold water
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup boiling water
Cook chocolate pudding and cold water, sugar and salt together to boiling, slowly beat in 1 cup boiling water; cool. Use at once or place in covered jar in refrigerator. This syrup will keep for 2 or 3 days in refrigerator. Makes two cups or sufficient for 8 drinks.

Attorneys for Bruno Richard Hauptmann, suspect in the Lindbergh kidnapping case, have indicated they will file an appeal from the decision of Justice Ernest E. L. Hammer, of Bronx County Supreme Court, dismissing a writ of habeas corpus which was instituted to prevent extradition of Hauptmann to New Jersey where he faces murder charges in connection with the abduction. These photographs show Hauptmann and his wife, Anna, in the courtroom during the hearing on the writ. The suspect is pictured examining the Lindbergh ransom notes which he denied writing.

RACING

I doubt whether F. F. will do anything in the Comrie Handicap—he has only recently recovered from an attack of colic. Sprinters, however, abound in the entries, and I should not be surprised if Partnership came into his own again at long last. Iron Grey and Burgomaster, not to mention Helter Skelter and No Fear, are dangerous.
Chivalrous is worth watching—he has had a first and a second in his last two outings and is carrying no extra weight.

Lemberg's Chances

I was disappointed to hear that Monoplane was not starting in the Crief Handicap, as I rather fancied his chances over five furlongs. Lemberg looks fit and a win would not come as a surprise, though The Tiger will be very close and Wayward Stag and Valorous are both dangerous over the distance. Bistre is in at a low weight and may run into a place.

Nell Gwyn Defends Record

The Australian race will be the titbit of the programme, as Mutiny Bay (Mr. Davis), Nell Gwyn (Mr. Proulx), record-holder, and Just That (Mr. Deitz) promise a full quota of thrills. Though I fully realise the Dunbar entry's tremendous weight advantage, I have a hankering for Nell Gwyn's chances—she was not at her best when she ran behind Soucy Face and Dinty in the record breaking 6 furlongs run earlier in the month.

Mutiny Bay has a 5lb. reduction as the result of his poor showing in the Queensland Handicap, while Nell Gwyn has a 10lb. advantage over Just That.

Dinty, though he failed to last a mile last time out, is dangerous at the weights—he will be carrying 30lb. less! I understand Mr. Black will have charge of him. Night Star also ran a good race behind Bag Tor in the Queensland Handicap, and would not surprise if he placed.

The Novices' Race

The Bodegas appeals in the Novices' event with Chesterfield and Hell for Leather as his most serious rivals. Delightful Chance won the Sussex Handicap over a furlong longer, and will have to be seriously considered, and In Good Time is by no means a rank outsider.

Weights May Decide

Chief Seattle will have a 10lb. advantage over Heart's Glory over 6 furlongs tomorrow as the result of his defeat by 2 lengths over 5 furlongs at the last meeting, and I think he will just about do it. Boxing Eve was placed third last time, but I rather fancy Great Hall for this position, though he finished fourth in the corresponding race last meeting. Mr. Gus da Rosa may take out Zero in this race, and he should not be far away.

FOKI AMUCK WITH HAMMER

Attacks Master And Young Girl

Two occupants of No. 116, Jervois Street, were removed to the Government Civil Hospital last night, suffering from severe injuries inflicted by a young Chinese foki of the same address with a hammer. The assailant has not yet been apprehended but it is believed that he is Cheung Wai-tse, a foki of the premises who suddenly went mad. He is thought to be somewhat mentally unbalanced and attacked his master and the midwife for no apparent reason.

Two cases of diphtheria and one case of typhoid fever were reported in the Colony during the 24 hours ended November 28.

LEMON ICE OR MINT SHERBET HITS THE SPOT ON HOT DAYS

FROZEN FRUIT DESSERT

THREE USEFUL RECIPES

Nothing is better on a hot day than a frozen fruit dessert, sherbet, ice or muscovite. An ice cream rich with cream, eggs, nuts and chocolate furnishes lots of food value but also heat-producing calories. So, while it may be cold to the taste, it has the reverse effect on the body.

Remember in making ices that sugar is a quick energiser and adds fuel value to a meal. Use enough to make the ice palatable, but don't over-sweeten and thus add extra heat.

Fruit pulp and sugar are used to make a muscovite and fruit juice and sugar syrup to make an ice. Sherbet or sorbet adds stiffly beaten whites of eggs to a water ice foundation.

Muscovite of Watermelon
Four cups shredded watermelon, 2 cups powdered sugar, 4 tablespoons sherry.

Break watermelon with a fork, removing seeds. Combine with sugar and sherry and turn into freezer. Pack in four parts ice to one part ice cream salt and let stand two hours or longer. Serve in chilled sherbet glasses.

Lemon Ice
This can be used as the foundation for several inviting desserts and beverages.

Four cups water, 2 cups sugar, 4 lemons, 1 large orange or 2 small ones, 1 tablespoon granulated gelatine.

Grate rinds of orange and lemon and add to sugar and water. Bring to the boiling point and boil eight minutes.

Add gelatine which has been softened in 4 tablespoons cold water for five minutes. Stir until gelatine is dissolved, strain and cool. Squeeze juice from lemons and orange and strain. When syrup is cold, add strained juice and turn into freezer. Freeze as usual.

To make tutti-frutti ice, add 1 cup diced peaches or apricots and 1 cup red raspberries when lemon ice is half frozen.

For lemon granite, add 1 cup sweet elder and 1 cup crushed ice and serve in tall glasses. Lady fingers or sponge cup cakes are good to serve with the granite.

Lemon frappe is served in punch glasses. Make a hole in the centre of each serving and fill with 2 or 3 tablespoons grape juice.

Mint Sherbet

Four lemons, 2 oranges, 1 large bunch mint, 2 cups water, 1 cup sugar, white of 1 egg, few grains salt, green vegetable colouring, strain and add juice from lemons.

Cut mint finely and put into a large bowl. Make a syrup of sugar and water and pour over mint. Cover closely and let stand 1 hour. Add colouring if wanted and turn into freezer. When half frozen fold in white of egg beaten until stiff with a few grains of salt. Finish freezing and serve with a garnish of slightly sweetened whipped cream.

DEVILLED HAM IS DELICIOUS

1 pound ham 2 tablespoons
2 tablespoons chopped
chopped green peppers onion 1 tablespoon
2 tablespoons prepared chopped mustard
celery 1/4 teaspoon paprika

Have ham cut 2/3 inch thick. Heat frying pan. Add and quickly brown both sides of ham. Cover, lower fire and cook 15 minutes. Turn ham several times. Remove from pan, add seasonings, excepting mustard, to fat remaining in pan. Cook 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Add ham and cook one minute. Remove ham to serving platter, add mustard to ham drippings and when blended pour over ham. Serve at once.

Norma Shearer will do three films in costume. Now she has finished "Barretta of Wimpole Street," then she will do "Marie Antoinette," and last "Nancy Stair" wherein Robert Burns is the principal male character.

Anna Stein will start work under the direction of King Vidor as soon as she has finished "Resurrection."

W. C. Fields is the star in "Mississippi" with Joan Bennett and Lanny Ross, the crooner, supporting.

Francis Lederer will play in a sequel to "Flying Down to Rio" called "Auto Accident." This is his first Hollywood musical. His fiancée, Sten Dunne, is now taking out her first papers as an American citizen.

Myrna Loy has been lent to Paramount and will have Henry Wilcoxon as her lead.

Miriam Hopkins has now signed the dotted line to Sam Goldwyn as being in her new career with Paramount.

Spencer Tracy has been cast to play the lead in Dante's "Inferno," with Claire Trevor, Alice Faye and Henry B. Walthall. (What about the American accents in this?)

Harry Edington is in London with his wife, and as he is again Greta Garbo's manager the rumours are flying that Garbo intends making a British film.

Basel Dean will make a film of the life of Mozart and the scenario will be written by Margaret Kennedy.

M.G.M. who had to pay $25,000 damages to the Princess is now to be sued by the Prince for alleged defamation of character.

"The Night is Young," starring Evelyn Laye and Ramon Novarro, is well on its way at the M.G.M. Studio.

Mr. and Mrs. Thalberg (Norma Shearer) have been among the guests recently on the Charles Chaplin yacht Paulette Goddard, as usual, was the hostess. No one can find out yet if they are really married, but anyhow they are inseparable.

It really looks as though Sylvia Sydney will marry B. P. Schulberg at last. They are awaiting the decrees of his divorce to come through.

LOUISE DRESSER, whose real name is Kerlin, was born in 1882. She is married to Agent Jack Gardner. She first met with success on the stage, where she had great fame on Broadway, being noted for her blonde beauty and ability. Her first big hit was with the late Rudolph Valentino in "The Eagle," and later made film game in "The Goose Woman" with the late Jack Pickford. Now at her best in mother roles.

MADELINE CARROLL was born in 1906 in Bromwich, and was educated at Birmingham University. She was married to wealthy Captain Philip Astley in 1931. She gave up her position as a French teacher in a school in Hove, and landed in London seeking a theatrical career with only £20. Her beauty and personality quickly landed her work, and she had no need to suffer any of the theatrical hardships. She is now one of the highest paid stars in British films, and recently made one in Hollywood.

HELEN TWELVETREES, whose real name is Helen Jurgens, was born in Brooklyn, New York, in 1903. She started her theatrical career with study at the American Academy of Dramatic Art. She married a fellow student, Clark Twelvetrees, but was divorced, and is now married to Frank Woody, with one son. She was famous on the stage before Fox gave her a film contract.

JACK HOLT was born in Virginia in 1888, and was educated in New York. He is the son of a clergyman and was married 15 years. He is now divorced, having one son and one daughter. His greatest hobby is polo and he belongs to the most exclusive Clubs in California. Before going on the stage he had a most colourful career as a civil engineer, prospector and rancher. His ability as a rider earned him his first chance in the films, and he is now a Columbia star.

In "Jimmy the Gent" a punch is packed into every line. Jimmy is the most pugacious thing you ever saw, and he "runs" a racket, that is a new one to me, on the screen. He finds holes to fortunes that are going a-begging, and if there are no holes, he provides them, taking his fifty-fifty "cut." Allen Jenkins is his foil, and their scenes together are a scream. Alice White shares in handling out the laughs, while Bette Davis is the heart interest.

The story revolves round the rivalry between Cagney and Alan Dinehart, and with slick direction, by Michael Curtiz, the pace does not slacken for an instant. You have to be a Cagney fan to appreciate his rough-house comedy, quick-fire speech, American slang, and wisecracks, but if you are, then this is entertainment of splendid value. (Alhambra).

"This Sporting Age" brings back a favourite actor of mine—Jack Holt, one of the best bets of the Columbia Studio.

This is straightforward sentiment about horses and polo. Jack Holt is one of the Californian experts at this game. He portrays the character of an Army Officer devoted to the game, but unable to afford to play it. His daughter, charmingly played by Evelyn Knapp, is in love with a young millionaire, and it is while on a visit at his house that trouble starts. The villain and vamp then enter, bringing in their wake ruin to the devoted father and daughter. But the hero saves the day. No more of the story. The cast includes Hardie Albright, Walter Byron, and Nora Lane. A little too sentimental, but the polo scenes are worth while. (Alhambra).

"Trouble" Sydney Howard has ample opportunities for bringing laughter in "Trouble." As the steward on a pleasure cruise, we find him mixed in a jewel robbery, and finally solving the mystery, but not before he has a series of mixed adventures. You cannot help laughing at his foolery, and his quaint humour, whether he is disguised as "Britannia" at the ship's fancy dress ball, riding a ridiculously tiny donkey, dressed in a towel ashore at Tangiers, or acting as a conjuror's assistant at a ship's concert.

You may think it such broad farce that you will not appreciate it, but if you have a few good hearty laughs, that is more than most so-called comedians can give you. Muriel Aled, George Curzon, and Hope Davey are in the cast, but the star is the mainstay of the show. (King's).

"Just Smith" "Just Smith" is the film version of Frederick Lonsdale's "Never Come Back." The cast is entirely British, starring Tom Walls, with direction by the star. Anne Grey is the best of the female support, with Carole Goddard as the heart interest.

Tom Walls and Hartley Power, as society crooks, plan to rob their hostess, but what happens makes a lively evening's entertainment. Most of the action takes place aboard a yacht and in Monte Carlo. (Queen's).

"The Barretts Of Wimpole Street" Seldom comes a picture with such distinguished beauty as "The Barretts of Wimpole Street." This is the play that gave fame to America's greatest actress, Katharine Cornell, and only Norma Shearer could have stayed to do it on the screen. "The First Lady" again proves her absolute supremacy in her own line. The cast is superb, and Charles Laughton does his greatest portrayal to date, also the wistful little Irish girl, I am beginning to like so much—Maurice O'Sullivan. Fredric March, shares the honours again with the star, as he did in "Smilin' Through."

Each and every one, not forgetting the dog "Flush," helps to make this the really outstanding film from the M.G.M. Studio this season.

This story of love between the two famous poets, Elizabeth Barrett and Robert Browning, will rank in beauty with "Romeo and Juliet." More of this later, but here is a picture you will never forget. Coming shortly to Queen's.

"Oriental Showings" Joan Crawford does a delightful piece of acting in "Sadie McKee." This clever, lovely girl is at her best, but she shares the honours with Edward Arnold, who portrays the part of the drunken millionaire husband to perfection. Françoise Tene and Gene Raymond ably assist, and the story holds one's interest throughout.

This will be followed by William Powell, Bette Davis, and Verne Tinsdale in "Fashions for 1934." It is a gorgeously mounted production, showing up the fashion thieves in Paris, and is excellently acted.

I remember liking Lee Tracy in "Private Jones," the story of a man who did not want to go to war, but who is forced to enlist. Gloria Stuart and Donald Cook are in the cast of a most unusual story. All due at the Oriental.

"Star Productions" "I was a Spy" won the highest honours awarded to British films in 1932. It gave Madeline Carroll a first-class chance, but to my mind Conrad Veidt stole the acting honours, while Herbert Marshall was totally miscast as the French soldier. If you are not tired of war plays you will find this well produced with a thrillingly told story.

This will be followed by the "Royal Family" of the American theatre, the Barrymores, Ethel, Lionel and John, in "Rasputin." It is a gorgeous production. M.G.M. had to pay out thousands to the Russian Princess who sued them for defamation of character in their portrayal of the character of the Princess. (Played by Diana Wynyard), the wife of the Prince who ultimately killed the Priest-ruler of Russia.

Then comes "Pilgrimage," a typical American story, featuring Henrietta Crossman as the mother, who, through jealousy, forces her son (Norman Foster) to go to the War. Marian Nixon is delightful as the girl he loves. All due at the Star.

"Caravan" "Caravan" is a gorgeously mounted operetta with dreamy, catchy gypsy music. Charles Boyer is a bigger favourite on the Continent than the other famous Frenchman, Maurice Chevalier. Now we have ample opportunity of seeing this fascinating man, as the gypsy violinist lover.

Loretta Young, Jean Parker, and Phillips Holmes are in the supporting part with expert direction by Erik Charell, the famous producer of White Horse Inn. This film has distinct novelty. More of it later, coming to King's.

"She Made Her Bed" "She Made Her Bed" was first titled "Baby in the Ice-box," and in it we have the first appearance of the baby son of Dick Arlen and Jobyna Ralston. Sally Eilers is the much harassed heroine, Dick Arlen the man she loves, and Robert Armstrong the man to whom she is married. The film depends on the thrilling climax, where she has a fire, a tiger loose, and the baby hidden in the ice-box. (Queen's).

Three winners of the Motion Picture Academy award of merit appear together in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street." They appear here with the statuette presented Charles Laughton, the most recent winner. BOTH WAYS it didn't amount to much, anyway. However, a new discovery was made. The horse that had won had a star against it in 'The Wizard's' list. So now the reason for the star was known! 'The Wizard' couldn't give all the winners, or Messrs. Grabb and Take would soon go out of business. He just gave one winner and put a star against it, leaving it to the clever ones to find out why the star was there.

"Next day they all backed the starred selection.

"Of course, it lost. They followed it for the rest of the week, and it continued to lose.

"At the week-end everyone received an envelope from Messrs. Grabb and Take, as usual, but instead of money there was a statement inside marked 'You owe $3 3s. 4d.' or varying sums, but all to the same effect.

"And indignation meeting was held at Flanagan's bar. Rory said, 'How can we owe them money, when we never said we'd give them any?'

This remark so pleased Flanagan that he forgot to take for a round of drinks. It was acclaimed as a true and just summing-up of the situation. Presently Flanagan remembered the drinks, but as no one claimed to have ordered them, and all had been consumed, there was a spot of bother about it, and the meeting broke up in disorder.

My good friend paused and knocked out his pipe.

"Go on," I pleaded, "I'm burning to hear the end of it."

"Well, nothing happened for a month or two, except that every week letters came from 'the willed men across the water,' getting a bit more and more 'willed,' I dare say. Then one day the train arrived carrying a stranger in a bowler hat, and the stranger carried a bag marked with the letters 'P. Grabb.'

"M'm," I murmured, very ominously.

"Now, I think I told you that we had a bright young porter—O'Callaghan's name. He certainly justified himself that day.

"As he went forward to take the stranger's bag from him, he observed the name, and realised in a flash that this was one of the 'willed' men.

"Tell me, my man, beamed friend Grabb politely, 'do you know where Mr. McGinty lives?'

"O'Callaghan sighed deeply. 'Have you not heard,' he said, 'about poor Mr. McGinty? He shot himself last Wednesday. Been taking up with the racing they do say.'

"Good heavens," said Grabb, rather taken aback, 'what a dreadful thing. Where now is the inn which Mr. Flanagan keeps?'

"Have you not heard?" said young O'Callaghan. "Poor Mr. Flanagan doesn't keep the hotel any longer. He'd been taking up with the racing some say, and it so preyed on his mind, he drank himself to death a week ago."

"Good lord," said Grabb, 'this is a terrible business. Well, I'd better go to the inn, anyhow.'

"O'Callaghan, avoiding the book-office exit, where McGinty stands taking the tickets, slipped through the side gate, took Grabb's ticket himself, and bundled him into the ancient station cab.

Beckoning old O'Brien off the box-seat, he told him to drive half an hour out in the country before taking his passenger to the pub, and then bolted up to the village with the news.

"Then the fun commenced. Never say Irishmen can't rise to an occasion. Flanagan got a ladder, a pot of paint and a brush, and showing more agility than he had done for years, painted out his name from over the front door. Meanwhile, messengers ran up and down with the news, summing the 'bhoy's' to Flanagan's to see the fun."

"Did they get their fun?" I asked.

"They got their money's worth all right. When the cab eventually rolled up the place was packed. Grabb entered the bar and ordered whiskey, and Flanagan gave him a double measure of the special brew.

"Do you know," asked the wretched man, 'where I can find Mr. O'Sullivan?'

"Mr. O'Sullivan," of Screech Owl-lane?

"Several bystanders hastened to enlighten him. 'Have you not heard about poor Rory O'Sullivan? Sold up and gone to America—him with a wife and ten children poor!'

Rory is only twenty-three, by the way. And Mr. O'Flynn? 'Gone to America too. Been taking up with the racing they do say.' And Mr.

O'Shaughnessy? 'Hanged himself a month ago? Here several of the company broke down and were helped to liquid consolation by their friends. Flanagan having already tipped the wink that it was 'open house' to-night.

"Poor Grabb, quite upset, mopped his brow and gulped down his poison. Every single soul in the place seemed to have committed suicide or emigrated. Presently he revived a bit. He mustn't let this get him down. He began to speak of dog-racing, a sport of which he was very fond. He owned several track dogs himself.

"The bar took him up. Dogs! Now weren't the finest dogs in the world bred in Ireland. Even in this village there was a greyhound that.

"Flanagan slipped quietly out and collared young Larry Flynn, who was trying to peep through the bar window.

"Run, ye spalpeen," he says, 'and bring Miss Bridget's greyhound Patsy here to me, and the devil take ye if ye're not back in folve minutes!'

"At 9.45 p.m. his head, whirling with the raw spirit, Mr. Grabb, the respectable bookmaker, was dancing to the tune of an Irish fiddle. At ten minutes to ten o'clock he had bought Patsy for three pounds cash and five shillings for the lead. At five minutes to ten they all escorted him to the station. Very near, it was, compared with the drive.

"The train was waiting, and Jim was waiting too, with his hand on the starting lever and his head stuck out of the engine cab. Old Grabb, almost weeping with emotion, shook hands warmly with everyone, and was finally bundled into a first-class compartment tightly clutching the dog's lead. As he entered, someone neatly cut the lead, the door slammed and away started the train. That's the last he saw of the 'bhoy's' or Patsy."

"Well, well," I said, 'they were smart lads! But where does the humorous bookmaker come in?'

"A night-cap.

My host yawned and poured out 'He wrote them a letter when he got back to England. It read:—'I have always been told that the devil had his headquarters in Dublin, but he has branches in Monaghan and Cork!'

THE END.

KOWLOON'S LAST FOUR

THE Kowloon Golf Club Championship has now reached the semi-final stage with H. H. Mundy, D. C. Wilson, A. J. Braley, and A. W. de Roza contesting the right to enter the Final. Writing from memory, I'm almost certain that of these four only one has appeared in the Final in previous years—D. C. Wilson, who is the holder and was runner-up the previous year.

The quarter-finals provided keen and close competition in at least two matches. P. Allsbrook, probably the longest hitter in the Club, at one period of his match with Mundy, was 3 down and 5 to play, but he pulled out some marvellous golf over the last five holes and completed the eighteen "all square."

His effort, however, did not meet with match-winning reward, for the Club Captain put paid to his hopes at the 20th hole when Allsbrook had the misfortune to "and" the stream.

R. K. Collings lost on the 18th to the holder. Collings is a comparative newcomer to the Club and a very much improved exponent of the game. His ability to win matches has been rewarded by a reduction of 50 per cent. of handicap over a year.

JUNIOR CHAMPIONSHIP

THE Junior Championship qualifying round takes place next Sunday. The "draw" and starting times have been published. Messrs. Eastman and Groves, being Stewards of the day, A word of advice to intending competitors: be on the spot at the starting time. Following the practice established last year all entrants will be asked once, and should they not be present, their name will be automatically scratched.

GUNNERS ENDEAVOUR TO STOP ROT

Lacey Dropped From Premier Team

In an endeavour to stop the rot that has laid hold of their first eleven this season, the Royal Artillery are this week making several changes.

From centre forward, Baraclough moves to inside-right. Hopkins comes up from right back to centre forward, and Roe enters the team in place of Hopkins.

Lacey, who arrived in the Colony with the reputation of a first-class player, has been dropped, so it evident his showing last week did not satisfy.

BROWN'S INCLUSION

In the Second eleven even more changes are made. Brown, who in a trial game during the week scored five goals, mainly as the result of individual efforts, comes into the team at inside-right to the exclusion of Birmingham.

Taylor moves up from back to fill the other inside position, and Hall replaces Worthington at left-half. Ives takes the place of Taylor at back.

The inclusion of Brown should materially strengthen the forward line.

The teams are:—
First XI:—Durham; Glancy, Roe; Scott, Pardo, Harris; Smith, Edmunds, Hopkins, Baraclough and Knight.
Second XI:—MacKrell; Price, Ives; Hunt, Morton, Hall; Rivers, Brown, Leach; Taylor and Moseley.

NAVY FORWARD LINE AGAIN CHANGED

Kiley And Smith On Right Wing

For their fixture against the Athletic on the Club ground on Sunday, the Navy have made two changes on the right wing. Kiley (Suffolk) replaces Baxter at outside-right and Pay Midshipman Smith (Suffolk) replaces Tong in the inside berth.

Although the Athletic are a game in hand and above the Navy in the league, it is expected that the latter will take both points, in what should be a very fast and interesting match.

The team is:—Pepper (Suffolk); Ryecroft (Suffolk), West (Rainbow); Pyatt, McGuire, Love (Suffolk); Kiley (Suffolk), Pay, Mid: Smith (Suffolk), Connell (Bruce), Wearmouth (Bruce) and Skinner (Keppel).

JUNIOR CHANGES

Two changes occur in the Navy junior eleven for their match against the Eastern at Caroline Hill.

Dixon, a recent arrival on H.M.S. Kent replaces Hornsell at left back, and Males replaces McNeill at inside right.

The team is:—McGweney (Adventure); Solomon (Adventure), Dixon (Kent); White (Keppel), West (Phoenix), Bright (Rainbow); Dods (Suffolk), Males (Adventure), Glass (Rainbow), O'Donnell (Adventure) and Hinder (Keppel).

LINCOLN JUNIORS TO MEET GUNNERS

Much Improved Artillery Team May Record Win

The Lincoln's first eleven will not be engaged this week-end, but their second team will be fighting to retain their record against a strengthened Artillery side.

Rush will again lead the forwards, and Harper, who made his debut in the team last week, will retain his position at inside-right. Dobs at right-back is still a candidate for first eleven honours, his play having more than fulfilled the promise shown in the early trial matches.

The Third eleven will meet the R.A.S.C. at Chatham Road on Sunday, and expect to reverse their present position in the league.

English, who injured his knee a fortnight ago has not yet recovered, but as the first team has drawn a bye this week, it is hoped he will be able to take a place in the side when next he plays.

The team to meet the R.A.S.C. is:—Taylor, Dobs, Ocklough, Maughan, Wild, Potter, Clayton, Harper, Rush, McGuinness and Toyn.

RECREIO DEFENCE RESHUFFLED

D. Lopes Again On Injured List

Owing to eye trouble, D. Lopes will not take his place at full-back in the Recreio's first team to-morrow, thus causing a re-shuffle in the defence.

R. Silva-Netto will return to partner J. Bowen, and his place at right-half will be taken by N. Delgado, who was vested last week.

The forward line remains the same with A. V. Gosano as leader. The team is:—E. M. Marques; R. Silva-Netto; J. Bowen; N. Delgado; N. A. Beltrao; V. H. Marques; T. Castilho; B. Gosano; A. V. Gosano; J. Gomes and A. Alves.

F. SANTOS INDISPOSED

Fernando Santos, who attempted a return to the game this season following a season's rest due to a neck injury, is again forced to stand down as the trouble is recurring. H. A. Botelho fills his place in the Third Division team.

The team is:—Fernando; R. Silva; E. Levaroz; F. Laurel; G. Pignatelli; H. A. Botelho; C. Marques; A. Campos; C. Santos; E. A. Botelho and A. Ribeiro.

ATHLETIC SENIORS UNCHANGED FOR NAVY ENCOUNTER

The Chinese Athletic who met the Navy in the premier match at the Valley on Sunday, are making no change in their team.

The team is:—Sai Tin-lin; Ho Chor-yin; Mak shu-hon; Tsai Ah-fai; Lai Kwok-ching; Chan Chum-wo; Li Hung-ching; Au Ping-ming; Ho Ka-keung; Au Kam-fung and Fung King-yu.

BEASLEY TO LEAD SERVICE CORPS

Clark Returns To Strengthen Side

Although only one point separates the teams, the R.A.S.C. are expecting another win at the expense of the Lincoln's at Chatham Road next Sunday.

Aided by their new centre forward, Beasley, and the return of Clark, it seems that the leadership of the Third Division is due for another change shortly.

The probable team is:—Cooper; Fuller; Forryth; Hopcroft; Digby; Crayford; Eycott; Flood; Beasley, Clark and Vaughan.

AIR FORCE LOSS AT FORWARD

Intermediate Line Changes

With the sailing of the troopships yesterday the Air Force have lost Tait, their inside-left, and Earwicker, their right-back.

Tait's place may be filled by Alton, a newcomer to the Colony who played in the same position at Home, but in an effort to find another back it is probable that Earwicker will have to play the half-back line of Harris.

Earwicker's replacement to the Colony will also play in the same position, and it is probable that Earwicker will have to play the half-back line of Harris.

Tomorrow's team will be chosen from the following:—Fogg, Beacham, Eveson, Harzard, Reinton, Thompson, Gregory, Derrington, Farmer, Ewart, Allen and Aldridge.

AIR TOURISTS FOR SHANGHAI

Experiments In Radio Communication

NOVEL FLIGHT TO FAR EAST

Shanghai, Tuesday.

Tramps and travellers of all sorts and conditions, high and low, in their journeys about the world, never fail to come through Shanghai. The chances now are, however, that travellers of a new sort may be coming here shortly.

They can be described as aerial world tourists whose chief occupation seems to be in making extensive experiments with radio equipment.

They are Dr. Richard A. Light, an instructor in surgery at Yale University, U.S.A., and Mr. Robert Wilson of New Rochelle, New York, who has just graduated in radio mechanics from the same university.

The machine they are flying is a Bellanca Six-passenger skyrocket monoplane with a Pratt and Whitney Wasp engine and a controllable pitch propeller enabling the seaplane to take off in a confined space.

TWO-WAY COMMUNICATIONS

During their flight from the United States to Europe and eastward via Baghdad and Karachi, Mr. Wilson, who Dr. Light describes enthusiastically as the best radio amateur in all America, carried out experiments on wireless equipment carried in their plane. He succeeded in maintaining two-way telegraphic communication with a friend in the United States over a distance of 2,000 miles at working speeds of thirty words per minute.

They had left Newhaven, Connecticut, U.S.A., on August 30, and following Colonel Lindbergh's route along the coast of Labrador, flew to Greenland, thence to Iceland, the Faroe Islands and the Orkneys, to Great Britain. Some time was spent flying around the United

RESURRECTION TEST

Ghastly Discovery In Germany

Gelsenkirchen, Nov. 25.

A terrible discovery was made here when the body of a girl, who died two years ago, was found by accident. The girl was the daughter of a miner named Nozoll, who did not notify the authorities of the death two years ago and had since kept the body hidden in an airtight receptacle.

As only the skeleton is left, it could not be ascertained whether the girl had died a natural death. Nozoll had told his relatives that he could not bury the body, as the girl might be resurrected. He is well known to be very interested in occult matters.

The police have arrested Nozoll and inquiries are proceeding.—Trans-Ocean Kuo Min.

Kingdom and Europe, Holland, Germany, Denmark and Scandinavia being visited. Then the fliers crossed Europe to Lake Geneva and commenced their flight eastward.

WITNESSES OF AIR RACE
They halted at Rome, Athens and Cyprus, the latter place impressing them greatly. At Baghdad they stayed three days watching the Melbourne air race fliers pass through. Then they followed on to Karachi, having been advised not to attempt to cross India in their seaplane.

SCHEME TO CRUSH HITLER REGIME

London Meeting To Discuss Boycott

FRANCE DECIDE TO JOIN IN

Paris, November 26.

The French Section of the International League Against Anti-Semitism, yesterday closed its congress deciding to take part in the coming conference to be held in London on a boycott of German wares, "in order to intensify the movement which is the only peaceful and preventive means of crushing Hitler's regime."

In the course of a banquet which last night marked the end of the congress, the delegates were addressed by M. Paul-Boncour, one-time Premier and Foreign Minister of France, who stressed the necessity of abstaining from anything that may disturb the peace and good relationships among those who want it.

It is incontestable, however," he added, "that interior regimes influence foreign policy."

M. Paul-Boncour said that one must trust one's own ideal and that he himself was there because he regarded the struggle against the anti-Semitism as a fight against the weakening of the notion of right and justice.—Havas.

FOREIGN FIRMS REPORTED PAYING BUSINESS TAX

Payment of business tax by these so-called foreign firms has not affected those commercial houses who are owned entirely by foreign interests. So far, the Chinese authorities have urged the consuls in Shanghai to notify merchants to pay the tax, but no direct collection has been made.
